

Death Valley

5 Days, Sat., February 22 - Wed., February 26, 2025

Day 1 Sat., February 22nd Basque & the Bakersfield Sound (L, D)

Travel through Central Valley during spring blossom season. Enjoy a family-style Basque lunch before visiting the Kern County Museum where you will learn about the “Bakersfield Sound” – the country music genre created by Merle Haggard, Buck Owens, and other musicians in the honky-tonks of Bakersfield. Travel to the high desert community of Ridgecrest, where dinner is included at a local restaurant. Overnight at the Hampton Inn.

Day 2 Sun., February 23rd Discover Death Valley (B, L)

Enter Death Valley through the Panamint Valley, stopping at Stovepipe Wells for an opportunity to climb the Mesquite Flat Sand Dunes. Lunch is served at the Oasis (formerly the Furnace Creek Inn), an elegant hideaway since 1927. After lunch, discover the Harmony Borax Works and stand 282 feet below sea level at the salt flats of Badwater, the lowest spot in the Western Hemisphere. Arrive for a two-night stay at the Ranch at Furnace Creek, where you may swim in a pool naturally kept at 87 degrees and explore the mining and their historic artifacts.

Day 3 Mon., February 24th A Ghost Town & Opera House (B, L)

Visit the ghost town of Rhyolite, once a gold mining town of 5,000. Return to Furnace Creek for lunch and then visit Amargosa Opera House founded by a dancer from New York City who fell in love with Death Valley. Visit Zabriskie Point, one of the most beautiful overlooks in Death Valley. Tonight you may take a night walk with a park ranger, with thousands of stars above.

Dine at
The Oasis at Death Valley
